TRIAL
OF
COLONEL A. BURR.

MOTION FOR COMMITMENT.

EXAMINATION OF EVIDENCE.

THURSDAY, Sept. 24.

Continuation of Charles Duval's testimony.

Mr. Hay. Do you recollect any conversation with Mr. Blennerhassett about the temper of the people of New Orleans?—A. Mr. Blennerhasset told me, that the citizens were dissatisfied with the government under which they lived and with governor Claiborne, and that he would go to the Spanish country and establish a government independent of the government at New Orleans.——He mentioned at the same time that Mr. Graham was much beloved by the people and party there. I observed to him that when I was in that country, I frequently heard the people talking against governor Claiborne. Q Did he mention a particular time for the execution of this project? A He mentioned that he was to be at New Orleans by Christmas. Q Do you recollect of gen. Tupper's saying any thing about Allbright, a witness for the United States, after Tupper returned home? A I did not hear him, but I heard people say, that Tupper had declared, Allbright had perjured himself and he would make it appear. Q Did you know Allbright, and what was his general character? A I was at Belpre a few days before I left home; and the people said that Allbright was an honest industrious Dutchman, and they would take his word as soon as general Tupper's.

Mr. Wickham, objected to these enquiries. Why were they not made when gen. Tupper was here?

Mr. Hay. It is a great pity indeed he did not wait this investigation.

Mr. Wickham. He did wait 6 months.

Mr. Hay. Had you any particular conversation with Mr. Bl. about going with him to New Orleans? A He told me I might go to New Orleans with him, and when I got there if I did not like the place I might see Mr. Graham, who was a particular friend of mine, and he would no doubt put me into some business. Q Was this before or after you heard that Mr. G. was not one of the party? A It was after. Mr. Graham advised me to have nothing to say to this project, and that if I wanted to go down the river it would be more to my credit to go any other way. Q Do you know any thing of the kiln dried meal? A I do. It was ground & stored at my father's mill; about sixty barrels were of kiln-dried meal and about twenty or thirty that were not kiln dried. The boats dropt down and took in the meal.—Q. Where is your father's mill? On the Muskingum? A It is. Q Do you say that Blennerhassett's boats dropt down & took in the meal? A I do. Q What boats? A Those which were built by col Barker up the Muskingum. Ten of these boats were finished. They dropt down to the mill half way to Marietta, took in the meal and stopped at Marietta.

Mr. Hay. Were any uncommon exertions made to finish these boats by a certain time? A Mr. Blannerhassett said if the boats were not all done by a particular time he would take those that were finished and leave the rest. And colonel Barker got all the hands he could. Q And were any additional hands employed for completing the boats within the time prescribed by Mr. Blennerhassett? A. There were.

Cross Examined.

Mr. Wickham. Did Mr. Blennerhassett say any thing to you about a war with Spain? A Yes; he mentioned to me I think that there would be one. Q. And was it pretty generally expected in that part of the country? A I believe it was. Q Was it generally wished for? I think not. Q Have you made any other affidavit than in this court? A None. Q Did you give no information to gov. Tiffin? A None. Q What become of the boats and kiln dried meal? A Eat up I suppose by this time.

Mr. Martin. What the Boats too? Who took this meal? A It was taken by gen. Buel, and as it was said under the orders of the government? Q And what became of the boats? A They were taken to a creek at Maricita. Some were sunk, some were broken to pieces, and others were fitted up to carry away troops of the United States.

Mr Burr. Were these troops taken up the Mississippi above its junction with the Ohio? A So I heard. Q To St. Louis? I heard so.

David C. Wallace, Sworn.

In the fall of 1806, Mr. Blannerhasset informed me that he was engaged in a plan with a number of persons, which he tho't would be highly advantageous, and that he was authorised to offer me the appointment of surgeon general. I enquired surgeon general of what? And he replied, that he was not at liberty to explain, until I had engaged in the expedition. He used various arguments to induce me to join. He said that I should be in very excellent company; that the association would consist of respectable individuals, and particularised col. B. He thought that after so long an intimacy, I might rely on his friendship. The conversation ended with my peremptory refusal to join in any expedition, the nature and plan of which I was not fully informed of and approved. I heard Mr. Blannerhassett make proposals to several individuals to join; offering 100 acres of land; each man to furnish himself with a rifle and blanket.—He stated that when they got to the mouth of Cumberland, the plan was to be disclosed; and those who did not like it were at liberty to return. Some of the men engaged; others took time to consider the proposition fully. At this time the boats building up the Muskingum were nearly compleated, and a general rumor prevailed that Burr, Blannerhasset & Co. were preparing an expedition to dissever the states, and to carry the war into Mexico. When Mr. Blannerhasset again asked me to join, I replied that the same objections continued; and that I was not informed of the objects of the expedition. To which he replied, "you have heard what we were about"; which I understood as assenting to the reports. I told Mr. Blannerhasset that I expected they would be stopped, descending the river? To which he replied, that he did not think the country would be able to stop them; that he would have 500 men from Marietta; he would have 7 boats at that place, and they would be joined by others from above. I remarked that the people in the western country were excellent marksmen, and that the woods on the banks of the river would afford them an excellent cover for firing upon those who were descending the river. He replied, that "in that case we would land a party and set fire to every house and town." I rode with Mr. Blannerhasset to see the boats that were building up the Muskingum, where he showed the builder of the boats and myself the articles by which the people under his command, as he called it, were to be governed on descending the river.

Each boats crew was to choose the capt. until they joined col. Burr at the mouth of Cumberland where he was to direct their proceedings. At the boat yard, he directed the builder to have an apartment fitted up in his boat for col Burr, as he expected the Colonel, when he joined him at the mouth of Cumberland, would sometimes wish to stay with him. During the ride, I observed to Mr. Blennerhasset that I did not believe the plan would succeed, as the people generally detested and execrated the plan. To which he replied "if the people could not see their interest, we will not cram the measure down their throats." Mr. Bl. shewed me some letters he had received from col. Burr about this period.

Mr. Wirt At which time was it? A Between September, and the time of going down the river.

In one of which he admonished him not to be alarmed by the rumors respecting his arrest in Kentucky; as he apprehended no danger but delay to retard the intended settlement on the Ouachita. A person present (Capt. Elliot) enquired, whether col. Burr had mentioned any thing about the expedition. To which he replied "No: Nothing comes to us on that subject by the mail." Mr. Bl. spoke to me to furnish them a quantity of medicines and such directions for using them as were calculated for a military expedition.

In a conversation with col. Burr in 1805 he expatiated upon the situation of the Western country; on its being compelled to pay large sums, for the sale of lands, which were spent in the Atlantic States, and on the 3,000,000 dollars, which he said we paid for tax. These observations from col. Burr induced me to believe—Mr. Botts objected to the witness stating his own inferences...Col. Burr observed that this same money would vastly improve the commerce of the Western country.

Mr. Hay. Did you ever read the Querist? A I read the 1st and 2d No's at Cincinnati. Q Did the observations in these papers recall to your recollection your conversation with col. Burr? A They did. When I saw these papers I was asked my opinion about the author. I said that in my opinion, col. Burr had suggested the ideas and that Mr. Bl. had put them into words. Q Were the rumours that you spoke of general? A They were so. They were in every man's mouth.

Cross Examined.

Mr. Wickham. Have you had a medical education? A Yes; I received it in the university of Pennsylvania. Q Had you ever performed any surgical operation? A I had not. I never practised physic nor did I ever intend it. Q Was this conversation with Mr. Blennerhasset, after or before your refusal to join? A All the conversations were after that. Q Did any of the men, applied to by Mr. Blennerhasset in your presence go? A I do not know. Q What was the tenor of these rumours? A That this party intended to effect a separation of the union and to carry an expedition into Mexico Q When the offer of Surgeon-General was made to you, did you believe it to be serious? A I cannot be certain of Mr. Blennerhassett's motive for making this proposition, but supposed that his object was to induce me to join; although I had not practised physic.

Mr. Martin. Were you in the habit of curing gun-shot wounds, or cutting off limbs? A No sir nor did I wish it.

Mr. Wickham. When were you in Philadelphia? A In 99 and 1800. Q Whose lectures did you attend? A I attended Dr. Woodhouse Rush's, Wistar's and Bartons. Wistar was joint professor of Anatomy and Surgery with Shippen. Q Did you attend all the lectures? A Yes sir.

Mr. Hay. How long were you engaged in the study of medicine. A seven years.

Mr. Hay. Did Mr. Bl. know of this? A He did.

Mr. Wirt Did you attend any surgical operations in the Hospital. A I did; one winter.

Mr. Wickham. Who did you study with? A I studied about 3 years with Dr. White of Philadelphia.

Mr. Hay. Was this the same as Dr. White of Baltimore? "No" said Mr. Martin "he was then in Ireland."

Witness. What Dr. White of Philadelphia.

Mr. Martin. Oh! no; Mr. Hay and myself understand each other."

NOTE — The reader does not. But shall soon.

Report of a committee of the British House of Commons, on the West India Colonies.

[CONCLUDED.]

Your committee cannot omit to state another important advantage enjoyed by the French colonies from the sale of nearly the whole French mercantile marine to neutrals, under the stipulation of each vessel being returned into French ports in order to be navigated as French ships, within twelve months after peace, and with the enjoyment during war of the same privileges in the ports of France, as if they were actually French; for instance, to import sugar at a duty of four shillings per cwt. less than the duty imposed on sugar imported in neutral vessels.

In order to counterbalance in some degree, the advantages thus enjoyed by the hostile colonies, to the detriment of the British planter, it has been recommended that a blockade of the ports of the enemy's settlements should be resorted to; such a measure if it could be strictly enforced, would undoubtedly afford relief to our export trade.

But a measure of more permanent and certain advantage would be the enforcement of those restrictions on the trade between neutrals and enemy's colonies which were formerly maintained by Great Britain, from the relaxation of which the enemy's colonies obtain indirectly, during war, all the advantages of peace; while our own colonies, in the intercourse with whom that system of monopoly, which has been held essential to the commercial and military navy of this country, is rigorously enforced, are deprived of the advantages under which in former years they carried their produce to the foreign markets, and which in the present war by means of our decided naval superiority would have amounted to the exclusive supply of the whole of Europe; and when those extraordinary measures are taken into consideration which have been adopted to exclude the British colonial produce from the European market, it appears to your committee to be a matter of evident and imperious necessity, to resort to such a system by impeding and restricting, and as far as possible, preventing the export of the produce of the enemy's colonies from the places of its growth, shall compel the continent to have recourse to the only source of support which in that event, would be open to it.

As it may be apprehended that from the adoption of such measures, difficulties might arise in that intercourse from which the West Indies at present derive a considerable proportion of some of their supplies your committee have thought it their duty to make inquiry into the resources in that respect to which recourse might be had on such an event. During the only period which affords an example of the suspension of that intercourse, the evidence concurs as to the fact of a supply having been obtained (though not without temporary and occasional inconveniencies) from a variety of sources which may reasonably be relied upon, in case of such necessity, at the present moment, to a greater amount than the former period. From the examination of persons who in consequence of their residence in the British North American settlements, or extensive commercial connections with them, possesses the best information as to their present and future resources, there is ground to believe that some supply of the principle articles of lumber might be obtained from thence immediately, and to expect that, with due encouragement, the quantity of that supply might be increased to any extent.

The supply of flour which they could at present afford to the West India market would be small, and of interior quality.—They appear to be capable of affording a large supply of fish; and what deficiency might exist in other articles of salt provisions might be made up by supplies from Europe.

Upon the whole, the impression which your committee have received is, that the trade now carried on between the British West Indies and the United States of America, is very convenient and advantageous to the inhabitants of our colonies, and one which they could not relinquish with. our essential detriment, unless it were compensated by other advantages; but that it is not essential to their exisence, or equivalent to the disadvantages of their situation, in those respects which your committee have already gone through in the present statement.

Your committee having briefly stated the distressed situation of the West India planter—the causes which have gradually produced his distress, which are beyond his reach to remedy, and which must continue to operate with increased effect; and having stated such measures of relief as have been suggested to them, and such as, from the best sources of information, appear most adequate to the end in view, have only to add, that if those remedies are liable to objections and difficulties, there is on the other hand the strongest concurrent testimony and proof, that unless some speedy and efficient measures of relief are adopted the ruin of a great number of the planters, and of persons in this country, holding annuities, and otherwise dependent upon those proprietors for their income, must inevitably very soon take place, which must be followed by the loss of a vast capital advanced on securities in those countries, and by the most fatal injury to the commercial, maritime, and financial interests of Great Britain.

PARIS, August 16.

This day (Sunday), his majesty the emperor and king received a numerous deputation of the kingdom of Westphalia.

At 5 o'clock his majesty presented himself with the accustomed ceremonial, at the palace of the legislative body to open the session. His serene highness the prince arch grand-elector having obtained his majesty's permission to administer the oath to the deputies of the legislative body named since the session of the year 14, the appel nominal of these deputies was made by M. Lajeas, and each of them took the oath at the foot of the throne.

The appeal being ended, his majesty said,

"Gentlemen, deputies from the departments to the legislative body; Gentlemen, peers and members of my council of state,

"Since your last session, new wars, new triumphs, new treaties of peace have changed the political face of Europe.

"If the house of Brandenburg, the first who attacked our independence, still reigns, it owes it to the sincere friendship with which I am inspired for the powerful emperor of the north.

"A French prince will reign upon the Elbe: he will know to conciliate the interests of his new subjects, with the first of his most sacred duties.

"The house of Saxony has recovered, after 30 years, the independence which it had lost.

"The people of the dutchy of Warsaw, and of the city of Dantzic, have recovered their country and their rights.

"All nations, with one general accord, are rejoicing that the malignant influence which England has exercised over the continent is destroyed forever.

"France is united to the people of Germany by the laws of the confederation of the Rhine; to those of Spain, of Holland, of Switzerland, and of Italy, by the laws of our federative system. Our new relations with Russia are cemented by the reciprocal esteem of the two great nations.

"In all that I have done, I have had solely in view the happiness of my people, more dear to my eyes than military glory.

"I desire a maratime peace. Resentment will not have the smallest influence over my determinations. I cannot have any against a nation the sport and victim of the parties by which it is torn, & which is kept in darkness on the situation of its own affairs as well as those of her neighbors.

"But whatever may be the issue which the decrees of Providence may assign to the maritime contest, my people will always find me the same, and I shall always find my people worthy of me.

"Frenchmen, your conduct during the latter times in which your emperor has been separated from you more than 500 leagues, has augmented my esteem and opinion which I had conceived of your character. I have felt proud in being the first among you. If during these ten months of absence and peril, I have been present to your thoughts, the marks of love which you have given me have excited constantly my most lively emotions. All my solicitudes, every thing that could have relation to the care of my own person, did not affect me in any other way than as connected with your interest, and from its importance to your future destiny. You are a good and a great people.

"I have meditated different dispositions for simplifying and perfecting our institutions.

"The nation has experienced the happiest effects from the establishment of the legion of honor. I have created several imperial titles to give a new lustre to the most distinguished of my subjects, to reward glorious services by glorious recompences, and for preventing the return of every feudal title incompatible with our constitutions.

"The accounts of my ministers of finance and of public treasure, will exhibit to you the prosperous state of our finances. My people will experience a considerable deduction from the landed contribution.

"My minister of the interior will make you acquainted with the works which have been commenced or finished; but that which remains to be done, is of still greater importance; for I wish to see in every part of my empire, even in the smallest hamlet, the comfort of the citizens and the value of the lands augmented by the effect of the general system of amelioration which I have conceived.

"Gentlemen deputies from the departments to the legislative body, your assistance will be necessary to enable me to arrive at this great result, and I have the right to calculate constantly upon it."

BY THIS DAY's MAIL.

NEW YORK, October 9.

A gentleman passenger in the Arcturus, from Bordeaux, informs that the day before he sailed, he received a letter from his friend in Paris, stating that news had reached there, that Copenhagan had surrendered to the British.

Captain Patzig, who arrived at this port yesterday, from Cape Francois, informs that general Christophe, left Cape Francois about the fourth of September, at the head of ten thousand men, for Port de Paix, to give battle to general Petion.

Captain Pratt who arrived at Boston on Monday last, in thirty eight days from Amsterdam, informs that Copenhagen was surrendered to the British on the 20th of August, without resistance. Mr. Munroe had advised that American vessels in Holland, ready for sea, should go north about, and others should remain a short time to see the issue of our negociations in England.

ADDITIONAL EXTRACTS,

Translated from late Paris Papers received at the office of the Mercantile Advertiser.

PETERSBURG, July 29.

Since the return of his majesty the emperor, an extraordinary activity is remarked in the office of the Marine departments—The order is issued arming with all possible dispatch ther squadrons of Cronstadt and Revel. Not the least doub is entertained by any body that these armaments are destined against England, if she should adopt the fatal determination of rejecting the mediation offered her by our court. The English merchants settled here entertain the same opinion respecting the present dispositions of Russia for they are all endeavoring to sell their goods or commercial effects at any price.

SCHWERIN, August 15.

All the Danish troops that were in Holstein and the Dutchy of Schleswig, have been marched to Jutland, from whence a part of them will go over to the island of Fionia, which is seperated from it by the little Belt. That strait cannot be occupied by the English, as their ships could not engage in it without exposing themselves to the cross fire from the batteries on the shores. It will be much more difficult to send reinforcements over to the island of Zealand; it is not however altogether impracticable, and it is most likely that the Danish government will attempt it; the importance of collecting on that island a force sufficient to be enabled to repulse an aggression, will considerably over balance the inconveniency of exposing a few boats loaded with troops to fall into the hands of the English.

HAMBURG, August 10.

Prince de Ponte Corvo arrived here the day before yesterday in the evening.

Our senate has been convoked this day extraordinarily; it is said, that it will deliberate upon the expediency of re-purchasing the British goods, which will be restored to their former owners, in consideration of a certain sum, as it has been done at Leipsick.

The English who were on the island of Rugen have suddenly occupied Stockholm and Malmoe. Their intention is to occupy one bank of the Sound, whilst the French are extending themselves on the other, & to dispute that important passage.—The king of Sweden is himself stupified at the conduct of the English; he finds himself to be their vassal and their prisoner, and knows not any more whom to resort to for assistance to preserve his states.

SEMLIN, August 5.

Letters from Jassy, written by christian merchants, affirm that the duke of Richelieu has received orders to join his corps, the army which was acting against Persia, and to cross that kingdom for the purpose of going to attack the English possessions in India. The Persian monarch, Feth-Aly-Sha, is about being invited by an embassy, to make a common cause with Russia against England.

Thursday, Sept. 8.

On this day the examination of evidence on the motion to commit Aaron Burr, Herman Blannerhassett and Israel Smith, was declared by the counsel on both sides to be closed.

Mr. Hay opened the argument on the part of the United States. It is not known what counsel will take part in this important discussion; but is expected their arguments will be very able and interesting.

The two last days of the court, were taken up in the examination of major James Bruff, a witness on the part of the defence, who implicated general Wilkinson, with the explanation of general Wilkinson and the evidence of witnesses brought forward to invalidate the testimony of major Bruff.

A letter from London, July 30, says, Mr. Munroe's secretary arrived in London on Thursday last, bringing from America the unratified treaty. His excellency Mr. M. is not very well pleased with its being returned, though he says it could not have been sent back at a more favorable time.

It is reported that Cardinal Pesch endeavored to induce the claimant of the British Crown, (Cardinal York) who died lately, to bequeath his pretensions to Bonaparte. The application was unsuccessful.

Mammoth Cucumber.—There was raised this year in the garden of a gentleman in this town, a cucumber, the length of which was sixteen and a quarter inches, and the circumference fourteen & an half inches. The weight of it was six pounds. This may account for the cool weather we have had so much of.

25 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY, some time in the months of November or Dec. last, a negro man by the name of SAM, who was hired in the town of Alexandria to a Mr. Robert Smith. He was about 30 years of age, about 5 feet 10 or 11 inches high, very straight, of rather a yellowish or taney complexion, stutters a little, has a soft voice and generally seems humble and timid when spoken to. He had a wife at col. Jemmeson's in the county of Caroline, and may perhaps be lurking in that neighborhood, but I think it more probable he may have gone to the state of Maryland. If taken in the state of Virginia and brought to me I will give the above reward; if in the state of Maryland and brought to me I will give 30 dollas reward.
